Introduction

Consulting is learned by solving problems — not simply reading about them.

Saudi Consulting Club creates a structured environment where Saudi consulting candidates can practice, learn with peers, and develop stronger professional problem-solving habits.

01

Context

The gap between learning and practice.

Many candidates can access information about consulting. Far fewer have consistent environments in which they can:

- Practice cases
- Work through unfamiliar problems
- Receive peer feedback
- Develop professional communication

Learn Practice Reflect Improve

The missing step is consistent practice.

02

Purpose

SCC exists to make deliberate consulting practice more accessible to Saudi candidates.

Practice. Regular, deliberate work on business problems — not only reading about them.

Peers. Learning alongside motivated candidates who hold each other to a professional standard.

Professional exposure. Access to practitioner perspectives through selected sessions.

03

Who we are

What is SCC?

Saudi Consulting Club is a Saudi-focused professional practice community for university students, graduates, and early-career candidates preparing for consulting and related problem-solving careers.

Case practice	Peer practice
Career preparation	Practitioner exposure

SCC is an independent community. It is not a consulting firm, recruiter, employer, or accredited institution.

04

Who SCC is for

Who SCC is for.

Candidates at different stages, united by a serious interest in consulting and structured problem solving.

University students

Recent graduates

Early-career professionals

Candidates exploring consulting

Candidates preparing for interviews

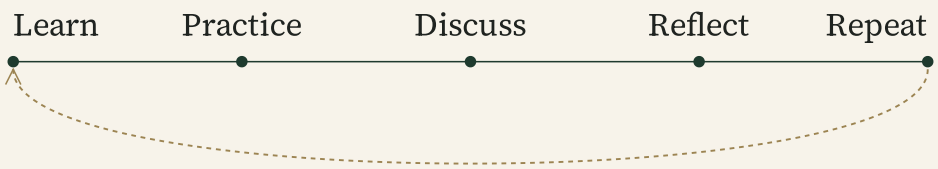

Eligibility follows the current SCC membership policy.

05

The SCC experience

Practice before performance.

SCC is designed around active professional practice rather than passive content consumption.

06

Practice environment

Built around the work candidates actually need to practice.

01	Case Practice	Working through business problems from question to recommendation.
02	Peer Interviews	Practising the interview conversation with fellow candidates.
03	Structured Problem Solving	Breaking ambiguous questions into clear, answerable parts.
04	Professional Communication	Presenting reasoning clearly, concisely, and with confidence.
05	Career Preparation	Understanding the path into consulting and related roles.
06	Selected Practitioner Sessions	Perspectives shared by working professionals.

07

Case rooms

Case Rooms

Structured spaces for collaborative consulting practice.

Members work through business problems, practice communicating their reasoning, and learn through structured peer interaction.

1. Question
2. Structure
3. Analysis
4. Recommendation
5. Feedback

11
Principles

How SCC approaches professional development.

I

Practice over passivity

Doing the work, not only watching it.

II

Structure over random preparation

Deliberate, organised practice rather than scattered effort.

III

Peer learning over isolation

Candidates improve faster when they practise together.

IV

Professional standards over simulation

Practice held to the expectations of real professional work — as a practice community, not a firm.

12

Saudi context

Why Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia’s expanding economy and transformation agenda are creating increasingly complex problems across industries.

Developing strong analytical, commercial, and problem-solving capabilities among young professionals therefore has broader relevance beyond interview preparation.

SCC is an independent community and is not affiliated with any government entity.

13

Working with organizations

A practical point of connection with emerging Saudi talent.

Possible engagement formats. No existing partnerships are implied.

- Practitioner Sessions
- Career Conversations
- Case Discussions
- Industry Exposure
- Professional Workshops
- Community Support

14

Partnership philosophy

Contribution before visibility.

SCC seeks relationships that create meaningful professional value for members.

Potential collaborators may contribute through expertise, practitioner access, learning experiences, or support for community initiatives.

15

Ways to engage

Ways to engage.

Contribute

Share professional knowledge or practitioner perspectives.

Host

Support selected professional sessions or experiences.

Collaborate

Explore relevant practice or development initiatives.

Support

Enable SCC activities and member experiences.

Engagement formats are developed individually according to relevance and mutual fit. Additional information available for relevant partnership discussions.

16

Direction

Building professional practice infrastructure for Saudi consulting candidates.

Community

A professional peer network of serious Saudi consulting candidates.

Practice

Consistent opportunities to do the work, not only study it.

Access

Lowering the barriers to structured, serious preparation.

Practice consulting. Properly.

For members.
For practitioners.
For organizations that want to contribute.
